

China's health aid to African countries: What do the data tell us?

Published on April 6, 2020 – Updated on April 6, 2020

Dates

on the April 6, 2020

Focus on Research

China's health aid to African countries: What do the data tell us?

China is increasingly present in Africa, where it is emerging as an important partner of States in the health sector. This study examines a range of factors that contribute to a better understanding of China's aid motivations to African countries in this field. The results show that they are complex and that they relate both to the needs of African countries and to China's specific interests.

Read in French

About the authors

Marlène Guillon

Université de Montpellier, Montpellier Recherche en économie, F-34960 Montpellier.

Jacky Mathonnat

CERDI-CNRS Université Clermont Auvergne, and Fondation pour les études et recherches sur le

Reference

Guillon, M., Mathonnat, J. (2019). "Is there a Strategy in China's Health Official Development Assistance to African Countries?", Revue d'économie politique, 2019/4 (Vol. 129), 619-660.