Obstetrical risk insurance scheme in Mauritania: Evaluation of the impact

Since 2002, Mauritania has gradually introduced an original prepayment scheme, the obstetrical risk insurance scheme, based on voluntary enrolment with the aim of covering care related to pregnancy and childbirth. The impact evaluation of this package shows that a voluntary prepayment system targeting pregnant women can improve the use of health services during pregnancy and childbirth.

Read in French

About the authors

Marion Ravit, Post-doctoral Fellow, IRD, CEPED (IRD-Université Paris Descartes), Université Sorbonne Paris Cité, ERL INSERM SAGESUD, Paris, France.

Andrainolo Ravalihasy, Statistician, IRD, CEPED (IRD-Université Paris Descartes), Université Sorbonne Paris Cité, ERL INSERM SAGESUD, Paris, France.

Martine Audibert, Director of Research, CERDI, CNRS, Université Clermont Auvergne, France, Senior Reference